

Duck, Duck, Goose

Everybody stands in a circle and a chosen player walks around the outside of the circle.

As they do so they touch each person on the shoulder saying, "Duck, duck, duck,"

At some point they will say "Goose," and that person then leaves the circle and chases the leader around the circle until they arrive back at the empty space.

The aim is for the "Goose," to catch the leader before they arrive back,

Whatever the result the "Goose," becomes the next leader. This ensures that different people are given the opportunity to play.
